

CHICAGO CENTER FOR CONTEMPORARY THEORY

Department Website: <http://ccct.uchicago.edu>

The Chicago Center for Contemporary Theory—known as 3CT—is a space for the critical discussion and reimagining of social, political, and cultural processes in the world today.

The shared question that drives the center is, How do we theorize the present? 3CT supports work that interrogates systems of power and value, that proposes methods and frameworks for making sense of recent events and ongoing transformations, and that demands that theory be relevant to the world we live in. In doing so, we foster an interdisciplinary community of scholars, students, and practitioners who produce new forms of theory that help to illuminate both what is and what could be.

Founded in 2004 by seven faculty members from the Divisions of the Social Sciences and the Humanities, our collective has grown to include more than twenty fellows, enabling imaginative collaborations across the disciplines. Our intellectual activities include ongoing projects, lectures, teach-ins, book salons, conferences, publications, and teaching. 3CT's general programming is open to all students, and fellows regularly engage with graduate students through collaboration and pedagogy.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS

3CT offers opportunities for students to take the lead in initiating and planning programming for the center, from conferences and teach-ins to small group discussions. In Winter 2021, we hosted our first graduate student-organized conference, which is now an annual event named in honor of longtime 3CT fellow Lauren Berlant (1957–2021). This opportunity provides a regular forum for students to engage in interdisciplinary dialogue with their peers on campus and across the country.

3CT also hosts a weekly dissertation writing group, aiming to build intellectual community and to foster interdisciplinary collaboration. Space, supplies, and breakfast are provided.

Please join our mailing list (<http://eepurl.com/hcszph/>) to receive updates about 3CT's program and announcements about opportunities. Students are encouraged to contact Anna Searle Jones, Associate Director, to discuss other ways in which 3CT can support your work.
